5 Key Strategies To Juggling Work And Family...With Ease
Author: Athena Williams-Atwood

Are you a woman business owner struggling with the juggling? You're committed to running a successful business while also needing to manage your family life. It can begin to feel like one long marathon, day after day. It can be absolutely exhausting! Bet you're ready to take a new approach. Are you ready to juggle work and family with ease?

Most women feel that one often overshadows the other (depending on the day and the deadline) and never seem to come to a place where they are comfortably managing both work and family. In this article you'll find five key strategies to be an expert juggler. You can run a successful, profitable business that makes a difference in the world while also creating a loving, joyful family life that thrives. Let's look at five powerful strategies:

1. Articulate "Who You Want to Be" Each Day

It's important to articulate who you want to be (i.e. calm, patient, kind, loving) each day so you can frame your actions and words within that context. If you want to be more patient, for example, allow yourself to bring patience into every interaction in your business as well as into your communications with your family. By seamlessly integrating "who" you are in each environment, you'll begin to feel better and experience more ease.

2. Clarify Your Work and Family Vision

With a clear vision, you can take clear action as you juggle your activities throughout the day. Begin by writing down your top three business goals and your top three family goals (they may be weekly, monthly or even annual). Give yourself time to clearly articulate your vision and create an action plan. Without this vision, you may feel as if you are running a race that has no end.

3. Know Your "High Impact Activities"

Review your vision and identify the high-impact activities for yourself (i.e. those actions that will bring the greatest results and place you closer to your goals). When you determine these, you gain a greater level of discernment about how to spend your time and energy. You can then "outsource" or eliminate the things that won't produce results that are consistent with your vision(s).

4. Identify the Top Three Things to Complete Each Day

Choose the top three things you want to fully complete each day. Most people feel stress as they juggle work and family because so many things are incomplete. I want to challenge you to pick three juicy actions every day for both your business and family (six total) and complete them with vigor! When you do, you'll feel a deep sense of ease and satisfaction.

5. Enlist the Help of Others (Colleagues, Assistants and Family)

Women often tend to feel they must complete everything on their own. It's simply not realistic. Look for new ways to save time, money and energy by enlisting the help of others. It may be a friend, colleague or family member. A mentor once said to me, "When you tell someone where you are trying to go, they'll help you get there." Allow others to help you meet your goals. With this support, you'll naturally create more ease for yourself.

Fiona, a gourmet foods entrepreneur in Australasia and the US, recently applied these powerful strategies during our 12-Week Work With Ease™ for Small Businesses program and was amazed at the results. She decided she was going to approach both her business and her family in a very different way. Within one month of establishing her "who to be," vision and high-leverage activities, she was on the road to more ease. She felt clear, focused and ready to grow her business to the next level.

I wish you well as you begin to look for ways to juggle work and family with more ease. May you know joy, may you know peace and may you work with ease.

JOKE OF THE WEEK
---- ---- ---- ---- ---- ---- --*--

Short Age Humor

A reporter was interviewing a 104 year-old woman:
"And what do you think is the best thing about being 104?"
the reporter asked.

She simply replied, "No peer pressure."

The nice thing about being senile is you can hide your own Easter eggs.

I've sure gotten old. I've had two By-pass surgeries.
A hip replacement, new knees. Fought prostate cancer, and diabetes. I'm half blind, can't hear anything quieter than a jet engine, take 40 different medications that make me dizzy, winded, and subject to blackouts. Have bouts with dementia. Have poor circulation, hardly feel my hands and feet anymore. Can't remember if I'm 85 or 92. Have lost all my friends.

But.....Thank God, I still have my Florida driver's license!

When you are young, you want to be the master of your fate and the captain of your soul. When you are older, you will settle for being the master of your weight and the captain of your bowling team.

Q. What are Easter Eggs?

A:

With Easter coming up this weekend, this is the perfect time to answer this question! Now, just so we're straight, this has nothing to do with hunting for those little plastic eggs filled with candy or the ones you paint up all pretty. This one is actually part of the computer terminology world.

Easter eggs are any hidden feature that programmers decide to include on any of their software, including DVDs and games. It's just anything the creator wants to add to the software, but they keep it hidden for their own personal reasons. Easter eggs could be anything like a hidden list of the contributors to the software, hidden commands, jokes, bloopers, animations, hidden dialogue and so on. It could be anything they thought was cool to add in the software, but for reasons only they can understand.

A real Easter egg must fall under five criteria.

- 1.) The information has to be undocumented, hidden and not obvious to the viewers. They can't be something that goes along with whatever software you're using. The Easter eggs only stand out because they are different and don't fit into the regular context. The programmers usually have some connection with the "eggs," so they include it in the program for extra entertainment, mostly for themselves.
- 2.) All Easter eggs have to be reproducible. With a set of instructions, anyone has to be able to reproduce the egg.
- 3.) They have to be placed on the program by the creators for their own personal reasons like a signature, an inside joke, a tribute, etc. The eggs must have been placed on there on purpose and through the general knowledge of all the creators.
- 4.) Easter eggs cannot be malicious for any reason. They are only meant for fun, not damage.
- 5.) This the most important one. They have to be entertaining. If it's not, it's not a legitimate Easter egg.

You can search online for different Easter eggs. It's fun to find ones that are on programs you have used or movies you've seen. Check out this Web site to look for Easter eggs. It has an archive of the newest ones found and lots more. It's worth a shot to see what you can find, don't you think?!

By the way, Happy Easter!

Until next week, stay safe out there
