Hello!

Welcome to all new MBP BizMajic subscribers.

Summer is getting so close; the parents can feel it in the air! In the US most kids are already out of school, while here in BC, my kids are in until June 28th. The days are being counted by them, you can guarantee that!

Summer is a very hard time of year for many work-at-home parents. You have to make sure that you are able to complete those business tasks, but also spend time or plan activities to keep your children occupied. Children can become bored very easily and that will affect them and also yourself and the business needs you have. Work-at-home parents must find the balance between children and business, in order to keep the household but also the money flowing.

When you can achieve that balance, especially during the summer months, you will find each day will flow smoothly but also fulfilling because of the time you have set aside each day to be with your children. Remember, your children grow up quickly, we work at home so we are there more for our family. So take time out of your schedule each day and listen, play and learn with them. Have a day set each week where you spend the day doing the things you both love. Your inbox will be there later <grin> article so I will just cover one that you may think are elementary.

The first way people sabotage themselves is to say "I don't need to set specific goals." That statement is very true if you plan NOT to succeed. To be successful in any endeavor you have to have goals. You have to have immediate goals (what to do today to improve my business), monthly goals (what I believe I can accomplish toward my quarterly goals), quarterly goals (what I believe I will accomplish toward my yearly goals), yearly goals (what I believe...), 3 year goals (what I...), 5 year goals (...), 10 year goals, and so on.

I know this seems very simplistic to a lot of people but it is one of the major blocks in the success of start up internet marketing businesses. Let's look at a couple of these in a little more detail.

1-Immediate goals: What do I plan to do on a daily basis to increase traffic to my web site? How many articles do I plan to write this week? How much time will I spend each day in forums? How many blogs will I publish this week? How much time will I spend each day increasing my education and how will I prioritize the knowledge I need to gain to be successful? These are only a few of the things you need to consider on your immediate goals. I am sure if you take a few minutes you can come up with several more.

2-Monthly goals-What do I plan to do to increase optimization of my web site this month? How much money can I allot to advertising for the month? Where will I use my advertising allowance? What ads will I use based on the type of advertising I will be doing? How will I track the effectiveness of my ads? These are just a few of the things you need to consider each month to increase you traffic and cost per customer ratio.

3-Quarterly goals-What is my targeted increase in customer base, quarterly profits, optin increase, etc? These are things you need to have defined based on the actions you are taking so you can have a gage to determine if your campaigns are working.

4-Yearly goals-What net monthly profit do you believe you can accomplish in the last month of the year? What number of optin subscribers do you believe you will have by the end of the year? How many, how much, from where are all questions you should have ask and have projected numbers for by the end of the year.

5-Three year an up goals are very broad categories that you should have goals of accomplishment set for. How much monthly income will I have, what type of house will I live in, what type of car will I drive, and so on.

Now to how this is related to the Law of Attraction. If you don't believe you deserve to have the things you have set your goals to get then you will not get them. It is really that simple. You may not believe this but your basic belief in what you should or should not have has a very limiting effect on your success. If you believe you have to 'work hard for your money' you will. If you believe 'money is bad or rich people are thieves' you will not accomplish your goals. I could go on and on with this list of beliefs but I think you get what I mean.

There are ways to get around limiting beliefs. There are also ways to change limiting beliefs. It is not easy to do so mainly because we have a tendency to believe that we do not have limiting beliefs but most of us do.

Work on your goals, write them out and read them at least each morning when you get up and just before you go to bed. Take 15 minutes each day and think about the end result you are looking for. Not only will this help you accomplish it but it feels good to see yourself as having the things you have set your goals to accomplish.

Good luck and I truly wish you all the success you are willing to believe you deserve.

Children on Relationships

HOW DO YOU DECIDE WHO TO MARRY?

You got to find somebody who likes the same stuff. Like, if you like sports, she should like it that you like sports, and she should keep the chips and dip coming. --Alan, age 10

No person really decides before they grow up who they're going to marry. God decides it all way before, and you get to find out later who you're stuck with. --Kirsten, age 10

WHAT IS THE RIGHT AGE TO GET MARRIED?

Twenty-three is the best age because you know the person

FOREVER by then. --Camille, age 10

No age is good to get married at. You got to be a fool to get married. --Freddie, age 6

HOW CAN A STRANGER TELL IF TWO PEOPLE ARE MARRIED?

You might have to guess, based on whether they seem to be yelling at the same kids. --Derrick, age 8

WHAT DO YOU THINK YOUR MOM AND DAD HAVE IN COMMON?

Both don't want any more kids. --Lori, age 8

WHAT DO MOST PEOPLE DO ON A DATE?

Dates are for having fun, and people should use them to get to know each other. Even boys have something to say if you listen long enough. --Lynnette, age 8

On the first date, they just tell each other lies, and that usually gets them interested enough to go for a second date. --Martin, age 10

WHAT WOULD YOU DO ON A FIRST DATE THAT WAS TURNING SOUR?

I'd run home and play dead. The next day I would call all the newspapers and make sure they wrote about me in all the dead columns. --Craig, age 9

WHEN IS IT OKAY TO KISS SOMEONE?

When they're rich. --Pam, age 7

The law says you have to be eighteen, so I wouldn't want to mess with that. --Curt, age 7

The rule goes like this: If you kiss someone, then you should marry them and have kids with them. It's the right thing to do. --Howard, age 8

IS IT BETTER TO BE SINGLE OR MARRIED?

I don't know which is better, but I'll tell you one thing. I'm never going to have sex with my wife. I don't want to be all grossed out. --Theodore, age 8

It's better for girls to be single but not for boys. Boys need someone to clean up after them. --Anita, age 9

HOW WOULD THE WORLD BE DIFFERENT IF PEOPLE DIDN'T GET MARRIED?

There sure would be a lot of kids to explain, wouldn't there? --Kelvin, age 8

HOW WOULD YOU MAKE A MARRIAGE WORK?

Tell your wife that she looks pretty even if she looks like a truck. --Ricky, age 10

Q:

The other day, my grandson accidentally spilled some water on my laptop. I know he didn't mean to and I cleaned it up the best I could, but I'm extremely worried about what will happen to my computer. Is there any way of saving it or what do I need to do next? Please help me!

A:

I know you already feel this way, but ouch, that hurts! (I'm sorry, I had to say it!) I'm sure this sort of thing has happened to all of us at one time or another. I mean, we all know that liquids and electronics do not mix well, but sometimes you can't keep spills from happening. And unfortunately, we can't blame Microsoft for this one either! But don't fret, because there is still some hope for all of us. It just depends on how much water was involved and what you did right after it happened. Let's check it all out!

Now, this type of thing can happen to any kind of gadget, including cameras, cell phones, keyboards and of course, computers. So, this tip can work for whatever device you're having trouble with, but I'm going to focus on the laptop for the person who asked this question. Alright, now, I'm going to be honest and tell you that your gadget may not make a full recovery, but with a little tender care, you might be able to save more than you think. Just follow these steps to see what you can do.

First, if your laptop is still turned on, turn it off immediately. You'll also want to remove any batteries, CDs, memory cards, etc. Basically, remove anything you may use to save your data and especially for laptops, remove any modular components and removable drives. Once you've got everything out, wipe off any excess water you may see on those items. Then if you're comfortable with it, it's best to disassemble the device as much as possible to get as much liquid out as you can. This is even more crucial if you can hear water moving around inside your computer. If you're not comfortable with this, you may want to find someone who can help you right away!

You need to get your laptop as dry as possible, both inside and out. If you're still worried about how dry you've really gotten it, you can try a couple things, but they're all a matter of luck, so just try them at your own discretion. For one, you can try putting your laptop in a heated area. For example, maybe place it on the dashboard of your car for an afternoon. As long as it doesn't get hotter than 150 degrees, the heat will evaporate the water. Just make sure the battery is removed from your device before you try this. You can also try just tipping your laptop upside down for as long as needed to give the water a chance to drain out.

I found a Web site that gave some other options, but they just didn't sound very safe to me, so I would try the two above first, for sure! Now, if you're not comfortable with any of this, you'll want to get your laptop to a professional as soon as possible. Don't wait a day or two to "get around to it," do it immediately! You don't have time to waste in these situations. That is, unless you don't mind paying for a brand new computer or damage control.

So, the next question is, "How can you prevent this kind of thing from happening again"? The best answer is to tell you to not keep any kind of liquid near your computer. Don't keep drinks or anything else by your computer. If you do that, you're just asking for a spill to happen. And you know how it goes, the liquid always goes right for the computer instead of the paper and pens you have sitting there.

For other devices (cameras, cell phones, etc.), you can keep them in plastic bags if you're going to be near water. If you're at the beach, keep your cell phone concealed, so there's no chance of water getting on it. Or use a waterproof camera. Just taking some simple precautions will keep you from many, many headaches down the road. If you just use some common sense and are very careful when it comes to your electronics, you'll be just fine!

Until next week, stay safe out there
